

NICOLAS DARVAS

HOW I MADE
$2,000,000
IN THE
STOCK MARKET

DARVAS IMPERIAL HOTEL NEW DELHI BOUGHT 1200 U 36½

H 68¾ (69½)

BUY 500 DINERS 24 STOP 21% STOPLOSS NEW STOPLOSS DIN

GLOUCESTER HOTEL HONG KONG BOUGHT 1300 THIOK

BUY 500 BRUCE 51% GTC STOP CANCEL PREVIOUS

The amazing story of a world-famous dancer who trained himself to become one of the most successful investors in stock market history.

LATIN QUARTER

CHERIE DE PARIS THE DARLING
OF PARIS

DARVAS AND JULIA

$2,000,000 "... just that second income"

(TIME Magazine)

"The lights go low at Manhattan's garish Latin Quarter nightclub. Onto the stage glides a slim-hipped, broad-shouldered man in white tie and tails. He grasps his partner, a stunning redhead in black tights, whirls her over his head on one arm, hurls her dramatically in a split-legged fall to the floor. The dance team is Nicolas Darvas and his half-sister, Julia, one of the top acts in the U.S. What the tired businessmen watching the show do not realize is that Hungarian-born Nicolas Darvas, 39, is a better moneymen than most of them; he is a top stock-market speculator who has parlayed his considerable weekly income ($3,500 currently) into a fortune of more than $2,000,000."

In these words, TIME Magazine introduced in its BUSINESS pages one of the most extraordinary and successful men this generation has known. As a producer and performer, Mr. Darvas has made his sensational dance act the highest paid in the history of show business. He and Julia are headlined in 35 countries — established a record by being held over 14 months in New York's LATIN QUARTER — have starred on the Ed Sullivan, Dinah Shore and other TV shows — and have been called by Walter Winchell, "The greatest dance act in decades."

But even this spectacular record is over-shadowed by Mr. Darvas' investment genius to which TIME Magazine devoted almost a full page. Starting as a complete stock-market amateur, Mr. Darvas developed his own distinctive investment methods which made him a millionaire several times over in a period of only 18 months. Now he tells exactly how he did it and clearly explains the investment methods that built a fortune.

Actually, Mr. Darvas was trained as an economist at the University of Budapest and was one of the best known crossword puzzle editors and sportswriters in his native country. Everything about him is unorthodox; he has no office and studies his investments in his room or at a table in the bar of one of the three hotels where he lives, the Georges V in Paris, the Dorchester in London, and the Plaza in New York.

Will Darvas retire from dancing now that he is a millionaire and large-scale investor? In the words of TIME Magazine, "Even though he has made a fortune he plans to keep on dancing. Dancing is his business; the stock market is just that second income."

American Research Council
Larchmont, N. Y.