★★★★★ Amazing guests and advice

by odannyboy661 from United Kingdom on Nov 21, 2017

Great podcast. Michael attracts some of the best names in the business onto his podcast. You will not find a lot of his guests on other related podcasts. His interview style is bold and always seems to extract golden nuggets of information out of his guests. Michael sticks his middle finger up at conventional trading wisdom you get from mainstream media. Like a lot of people including me Michael seems fed up with the ever growing governments around the world.

If you are a sheep that likes to follow the herd you should go listen to Bloomberg radio. This podcast is not for you! If you have had enough of bad trading advice and are looking to find something that works and will give you a new trading mindset then this is the podcast for you.

Would highly recommend reading the The complete TurtleTrader and Trend following.

Thank you Michael keep up the good work. Looking forward to the next podcast!

★★★★★ Eye-opening

by Windy Squirrels from United States on Nov 10, 2017

Love the thinking on this podcast, it's really opened my eyes. The traders he interviews are really interesting, and so are the non-traders. High quality, non-conventional intellect and honesty, if you don't know anything about the trend following mindset, start with Episode 1 and run them all.

★★★★★ Premier Podcast

by Fred J Garcia from United States on Sep 24, 2017

In this day and age so many people claim to know something that cannot be predicted. Michael Covel does engage in this type of behavior. When you listen to this podcast you will begin to sense an overarching theme of honesty, integrity and courage. Nothing is sugar coated and no promises are made. Instead what you get is the opportunity to listen to him pick some of the brightest minds on the planet. Since I personally do not have the time to do this, I consider this pure gold. This is not a stock picking podcast. If that is your thing go watch CNBC. What this podcast does is teach emotional intelligence, probability theory and a way of thinking that sadly is unique. Group think is not welcomed on this podcast. This is not entertainment. Mr Covel is a master communicator and knows how to ask questions that maximize responses. Listen in your car, walk your dog and listen, but seriously do yourself a favor and listen. You will not be disappointed and you will learn.

★★★★★ Fantastic Education

by AHNZ2017 from New Zealand on Aug 6, 2017

I discovered Michael's Trend Following podcast in August 2016 and decided to start listening from podcast number one. 12 months later I just finished listening to all 577 podcasts (at time of writing).

Those 577 podcasts have been an eye opening education about trading, the financial world in general, psychology and human behaviour and an assortment of other interesting topics!

Definitely worth making the time to listen.

★★★★★ Truth

by Not-important-Read-Covel from Netherlands on Jul 24, 2017

I've been in 'the business' for almost 20 years. I have entered this line of work (investing) in an unorthodox kind of way and got stuck so to speak. I have followed many industry-courses, including the CFA program. I am not saying that everything I've learned along the way is 'all junk', but there certainly are a lot of false prophets out there. Michael Covel is a straight shooter, be sure to read his 5th edition of trend following. Be aware before you buy it though - Covel won't bring you the magic formula, neither will he try to sell the snake oil that everybody seems to be selling these days...what Covel will do, is give you insight!

 ★★★★★ Insightful and full of food for thought by Sirroger1 from South Africa on May 12, 2017

This is my favourite podcast for all things related to Trend Following. Michael covers both the mental/psychological aspects of trading (and their link into behaviour psychology) as well as the more technical component through his interviews with various successful trend following traders. He also has a number over very interesting 'off topic' episodes.

Thanks Michael for my AH,AH! moment. Ive listened to dozens of your podcasts & I always learn something. I have read scores of investment books & I rate your Trend Following book # 1, I look forward to reading all your books Jim

by TedDMAINE from United States on Mar 5, 2017

Michael Covel challenges your thinking with his own thinking and those of his guests. Espousing trend following as a better way to invest (extract profits from the market through rules based trading), Covel supports systematic trading insights with guests with behavioral finance backgrounds to identify mistakes caused by hard wired human bias. One word of caution – Since I started listening to Trend Following two months ago, I have purchased twice the number books as normal from Amazon. All good!

Anything you can do to get this on your newsletter site, or set up a page where we can pay a few bucks and stream it???
I want to see it but I can't find any source that has it that I can buy access

 ★★★★★ Great trading and investing resource

This is a fantastic resource for both novice and professional traders. Michael and his guests touch on all facets of investing – trend following, psychology, systems and more. I find it very helpful.

 ★★★★★ A great trading podcast
by CJ_in_Exile from Poland on Dec 9, 2016

This is a great podcast, mainly because of the quality of the guests that the host, Michael Covel, regularly interviews. Although this is notionally a podcast about trading, the range of guests has expanded in recent years, to include sports stars, business entrepreneurs, journalists and world class academics. Michael is a great interviewer and seems to have a knack of bringing out the best in his guests. Listening to the interviews can be a great source of inspiration, not least because the participants are invariably high achievers in their own fields, and they almost always have some really interesting lessons to impart. Michael is also very good when it comes to imparting his trend following philosophy (which this podcastee thoroughly subscribes to after having read a couple of Michael's books). The only reason why I haven't given the podcast five stars is that occasionally (especially in his monologues) Michael can be extremely forthright in his political opinions. Most of the time his observations are interesting and amusing, but occasionally the polemical style of his libertarian views can become slightly tiresome. I am more than willing, however, to put up with these occasional outbursts because the rest of the content is so good.

 ★★★★★ Great interviews
by Hennie212 from United Kingdom on Dec 5, 2016

I started listening to this podcast investment advice but kept listening for the quality and variety of the guests! Great work Michael.

by Jordan CXO from United States on Dec 3, 2016

I came across this podcast a few months back and I can't stop listening to it. I stopped listening to music in my car, this is all I want to hear on my daily commutes. I have all his books and these podcasts are a must for any trend follower or just someone in need of valuable information from trading, economics or just daily motivation to get through this journey we call life. Thanks!

 ★★★★★ Never Miss, Jim Rickards?
by Marketsmith from United States on Nov 30, 2016

Michael's great work has changed my life, literally. I never miss a podcast and re-read all his books. BUT, Michael, you have criticized LTCM many times and you have Jim Rickards on your podcast, and not one question regarding LTCM?

 ★★★★★ Brain Vitamin
by JoshElyCFP from United States on Nov 30, 2016

Listening to Trend Following is like taking a daily vitamin for my brain. Great authors, great thinkers, great entrepreneurs delivered to my phone in easily digestible podcasts. Thanks Mike! Keep up the great work.

 ★★★★★ Heuristics.
by JP Kamp from United States on Nov 21, 2016

There is around 500 episodes and Michael's intolerance for charts or chart use during trading. The only indicator is price and price action only. If the underlying trading instrument has the tendency of going up the only way is to accept that fact and trade accordingly. At points during the podcasts there is an admiration to Buddhist teachings. Alan Watts is mentioned several times. I just wanted to write thanks to Michael for such an amazing podcast. The concept of heuristics and the eloquent explanations from your guests is what made me appreciate the time and effort that you bring to the podcast. Hope you can get to a 1000.

 ★★★★★ Got Investing?

 ★★★★★ holistic blast of knowledge
by John Larmoyeux from United States on Nov 4, 2016

As a novice trader, I visited this podcast in sync with reading Trend Following, simply to learn more about technical trading. I was pleasantly surprised to find much more than trading strategies and motivational speeches. From the meaning of liberty and the virtue of silence, to lessons from historical figures and intriguing modern interviews, this content is a holistic blast of knowledge that is bound to make me not just a better trader, but a better person entirely. In an era when most professionals shy away from contentious content for fear of damaging their "brand", or upsetting certain authorities, Michael Covel is refreshingly transparent. While many successful traders seem to squander their leisure time, I am glad to see one successful trader devoting himself to education, activism, and intentional living. I intend to make this podcast a regular part of my routine, and I encourage anyone else to do the same who has the aptitude to thrive in the financial markets, yet desires to remain distinct from institutional and cultural conditioning.

 ★★★★★ Always learn something
by Messtopf from United States on Nov 1, 2016

I enjoy listening to the podcasts that Mr Covel does. He has interesting guests that always open my eyes to something I hadn't seen.

 ★★★★★ Robust, holistic approach to trading, life and human development by ilamilkes from Colombia on Oct 23, 2016

I came across Michael Covel's work while studying Ed Seykota's trading strategies after reading Market Wizards by Schwager a few years ago, as a college student back in Chicago. Covel's book Trend Following is a gem containing the wisdom of many men and women who have walked the paths of trend following trading. You will do yourself a favor and accelerate your learning curve on how to make money and build a robust money-making system by reading Covel's books. But Covel did not stop at trading. Trend Following transcends the financial markets. Trend following encapsulates human development wisdom: from the red book – Ancient Tibet's "bible", to behavioral economics/cognitive sciences, to metaphysics, to physics, to sports, to entrepreneurship, to sociology...to economics, to philosophy...you name it. Covel approaches trading and life from a holistic perspective. How to reach your full potential as a human being? Listen to Covel's podcast. How to increase your performance physically, emotionally, mentally, spiritually? Listen to Covel's podcast. How to stay aware and "clean" from preconceived belief systems/biases that hinder you? Listen to Covel's podcast. Beyond writing this review and congratulating your for your work, I want to thank you for doing it. You are carrying a very bright torch with you.

 ★★★★★ A Most Straight-Talking Host with Diverse Guests
by Sal Es from United States on Oct 5, 2016

I really like Mr. Covel's straight-talking, no-holds barred, raw style as he interviews diverse guests that are directly or tangentially associated with Trend Following – a way of life that extends beyond Trading per se!

 ★★★★★ Roadmap in the Noise
by UltratraderChris from South Africa on Sep 17, 2016

Michael's Podcast is a source of inspiration and a roadmap that keeps me on track to focus on the important issues in trading and ignore the noise.

It is a weekly companion when I commute and I look forward to find out who is going to be the next great guest.

Great podcast, but I have to admit I dont like the swearing.

 ★★★★★ Great podcast (updated 17-09-2016)
by Gianmarco23 from Italy on Sep 17, 2016

I really love this podcast. It's a continuous source of content and inspiration. The conversations between Michael and his guests are full of great information and insights. What I like most are the passion that Michael share with the audience and his "contrarian" mindset. I can't thank Michael enough for the fantastic work he is doing. He has been one of the most important and influential person in my journey to become (hopefully) a better trader.
Bravo!!!

Added on 17th September 2016...

Another aspect that I started to really appreciate during the last few months is that this podcast is not just about trading. It gives continuously new perspectives about life in general. The "critical thinking" is presented by Michael and his guest about many topics, bringing always new excellent food for the mind. Really great stuff!

 ★★★★★ Lessons in trading and life

 ★★★★★ Covel's Trend Trader Podcasts are great!
by Paintflow from United States on Sep 17, 2016

Recently starting listening to these podcasts on my search for information to enlighten and awaken to different positive trading lessons that can actually help with attitude and execution. Heard of the Turtles, but wasn't aware of the full story, as I have been self employed 24/7 as a motorcycle painter and artist most of my life. These gems of wisdom rock! Wish I cared about trading a long time ago! I'm engrossed in both the history and positive reinforcement that Michael's interviews and books are providing!

 ★★★★★ Great information

After listening to Michael's book "Trend Following: Learn to Make Millions in up and down markets" I started listening to his podcast and enjoy his frank and logical thoughts regarding both trading and current events.

 ★★★★★ Great Perspective on Trading and Life
by Doqman from United States on Sep 13, 2016

I have been listening to Michael for a few years now and I always get a useful perspective from his interviews and musings. It is rare to have consistently top tier traders and thought leaders in one place. I listen to it for the trading viewpoints but it is as much philosophical discussion of Michael and his guest's outlook on life and processes as it is a trading insights podcast. Definitely worth the time.

★★★★★ Excellent

by bcat1981 from Canada on Sep 12, 2016

Covel has a gift for tracking down inspiring guests and getting them to talk about their passion.

The interviews with traders are fantastic and provide access to a world that's inaccessible to most. There are dozens of backtesting/research ideas embedded in these interviews and also lots of discussion about the softer, (although equally important) psychological side of trading.

Interviews that are not directly related to trading are generally though-provoking and inspiring. Guests come from many different fields and I find Covel asks informed questions – it really sounds like he's done his homework.

In the monologues, Covel generally questions the audience about a "conventional" view and encourages the listener to question themselves and their beliefs.

I've gotten a lot out of this podcast over the years and look forward to more!

★★★★★ Excellent podcast series

by MrAndrew75 from Canada on Sep 12, 2016

Trend Following with Mr Covel is a high quality and highly informational podcast series for anyone that wants to move past the unsatisfying returns of buy and hope and learn about a proven method of generating higher returns without needing to predict the future.

Mr Covel intersperses in-depth interviews with legendary traders and authors in the trend following space with his own discussions and thoughts on life and the frequent parallels between life, philosophy and trading.

I especially enjoyed interviews with the authors whose books I have read including Jack Schwager and Alexander Elder, who was exceptionally entertaining to me in addition to the educational value of the content.

Interviews with traders I follow on Twitter (for education, not news ...) were also great to hear, letting me get to know Steve Burns and Peter Brandt and their personal stories beyond 140 characters at a time.

If you want a way to turn the wasted time of commuting into a high value activity then this is the best way that I have found. A couple of years of free background education on trend following with some of the best authors, traders and educators out there, all curated by Mr Covel. It is all there for free for anyone with a curious and open mind that is willing to put in the time and effort to learn.

★★★★★ Best (trading) education out there

Michael Covel has changed my life. His work on trend following has changed the way i approach the markets.

Truth does not scare him, it excites him. There is always oen nugget of truth in every podcast.

It is so good it should be kept secret, but at the same time, everyone should know about it

★★★★★ AWESOME AND REFRESHING!

by Scratch more than surface from United States on Sep 12, 2016

I enjoy listening every week! You don't necessarily get trading advice every week but it explores the mindset of various branches of study, society, culture, and psychology that jive with the things taught in the books. It's about not following what the system expects of you but using the system instead of being exploited. Very worth the time!!

★★★★★ Must listen Podcast – everything you need to know about trend trading by ReiseExperte from Germany on Sep 8, 2016

Thanks to Michael Covel, his books and especially this podcast introduced me to the trend following world. The podcast is just a joy for me and a must listen on a daily basis. There is so much important info and content available and you are not getting tired of it. I can say with pleasure that Michael Covels podcast helped me to become a much better trader. Great work !

 ★★★★★ Excellent... Keep an open mind if you are buy & hold drivend
by H2OSkierWylie from United States on Sep 8, 2016

The trend following investing concept is what I always felt investing could or should be as opposed to riding the buy & hold roller coaster. The people Michael interviews are varied both directly and indirectly related to investing which is thought provoking. Unfortunately by design you won't find talk about specific strategy here, but more of an underlying current that there is a whole segment of trend traders that do well over the long term and not without drawdowns. The end result is what matters and as a whole they far outperform buy & hold. Some interviewees are ones in which you can invest with. Truly enjoy it Michael!

 ★★★★★ Consistent Message
by Jonathan Keim from United States on Sep 8, 2016

Whether it's through his books, his podcast or his training materials, Michael Covel's message never falters. In a day when the talking heads continually change their tune to fit the current dialogue, Michael's consistent voice is a breath of fresh air.

 ★★★★★ Very informative

Michael, thank you for putting together a great podcast. I have learned so much about CTA industry and other aspects of life from your podcasts. Please continue the excellent work.

 ★★★★★ A great opportunity
by GO_inAus from Australia on Sep 5, 2016

Michael Covel's podcasts are an extensive collection of insights into the thinking and learning of individuals who are excelling in their own fields—of—endeavour and are prepared to share their thoughts and learning. What is meant by excelling? – Nobel prize winners, successful traders, fund managers, authors, sportsmen/women, coaches, psychologists – the list goes on.

Michael has an eliciting interview style which draws out insightful and thought provoking views from this diverse range of interviewees.

The podcasts are not all about trading. If you are curious or inquisitive, if you like to learn, if you think you are master in any particular field of endeavour then Michael's podcasts will help lift and shift your perspective. They provide you an opportunity to use the learning of others to improve your own skills and knowledge.

The text book either hasn't been written or still being written for many of Michael's topics which include decision making, trading, forecasting, risk management, economics, psychology, mindfulness, gambling, speculating, meditation. Michael has a focus on data derived results and outcomes.

I love trading, learning, finance & investment and Michael covers all that stuff in spades. By far the best trading podcast I've found and I listen to it everyday. Prolific, energetic, challenging, opinionated, yeah and sometimes controversial, but it all adds to the flavour, which is full! Awesome work Mike, thanks for all you're doing and keep it coming.

If you are interested in trading and have heard of trend following, you should listen to this podcast; if you have not heard of trend following, you definitely need to listen to this podcast!

Author of four books and a film on the topic, Covel knows what he is talking about. No-nonsense, and straight to the point, Covel has managed to interview some excellent guests, including Jack Schwager, nobel prize winner Daniel Kahneman and several legendary market wizards such as Ed Seykota.

Since the podcast started in 2012, it has evolved and grown to cover many fascinating areas of study that are only tangentially related to trading, but he has retained his ability to ask penetrating questions and to allow his guests ample time to expound.

Thank you Mr. Covel for producing this podcast.

What I have learnt from Michael is the mindset required to be successful. Some of the most profitable strategies are the simplest, yet extremely hard to deal with the whip sawing emotions. This is where you will learn to let go of resistance and have confidence in your strategies through Michaels books, as well interviews on his podcast with influential people and great traders.

The breadth of topics presented by Covel is amazing, albeit sometimes off the trend following reservation. No matter – they are always mind expanding, provocative, insightful. The interviews with the giants of the trend following space remain my favorites, though Covel has helped me to better understand that "going with the flow" is a life philosophy that can bring greater peace, harmony and serenity. Thanks, Mike.

As an professional in finance and an individual investor, I find many of the podcasts very interesting. Michael have interviewed so many great persons, traders, writer, psychologists... I find is podcasts very refreshing, sometime is comments can bring you out of your confort zone, but if you stay open, you will learn something for sure.

 ★★★★★ Thought Process
by NateC345 from United States on May 31, 2016

As a former wall street trader I can say that Michaels books are in a league of their own. It is the thought process behind the trades that lead to making profits and not the trades themselves. Once you understand this simple fact that Michael tries to convey in every page of his books and episodes of his podcasts, you will finally be on the right path to taking money out of the markets. Two things 1) Read Michaels books and listen to his podcasts 2) challenge your current beliefs about how money is made in the markets.

 ★★★★★ So much valuable information
by Trader Nils from Germany on May 31, 2016

Michael Covel's trend following podcast offers so much valuable information the listeners. Besides the highly interesting topic of trend following Michael interviews people from all walks of life – be it nobel prize winners, traders or authors. With his contrarian not herd following way of thinking every episode is different and all of them are just so entertaining.

A definite recommendation for people who want to learn about trend following or enjoy entertaining interviews!

If I could choose only one podcast to listen to, it would be Covel's. Using the current definition of "Hack" as "an appropriate application of ingenuity", I would classify Covel's work as a life hack across a spectrum of topics that are timely, thought provoking, and always relevant. While the topic is trading and genre is financial, Covel does a great job of finding the guests that can talk to various aspects of our belief systems that make us act the way we do in the markets and in life. I have built a diversified library based on the work of Michael's guests, and I only have to wait until the next podcast for a good idea. Finally, one suggestion – Periodically there is great music for the intros and the closings. Maybe a reference to the artist and the tune could be provided. Great work Michael! John G

I have been listening to Michael Covel's podcasts now for a number of months. They are not just entertaining, not just informative, they are invaluable in today's world. He doesn't just talk about trading and investing, he doesn't just interview interesting and knowledgeable people he presents us with a world view that challenges the view presented in today's educational system and the media. Keep it up thanks.

 ★★★★★ So much more than just trading theory
by Beyazoo from Australia on May 30, 2016

Michael Covel is giving away what every serious trader would be trader needs and so much more. No rubbish, just hard rules for how to trade and all backed up with evidence and then by his amazing list of guests. Guests go far beyond just the Trading/ Market wizards to psychologists and everything else that is relevant to trading and life (maybe not everything to do with life but a lot!). Very interesting, applicable and no waste of time here! I can't get enough and can't believe its free!

 ★★★★★ Trend following
by Derteye from Australia on May 28, 2016

Michael exhibits a wonderful interviewing style where he strongly connects with the guest such that you would think they were long time friends or business colleagues. The conversations are easy to listen to and Michael keeps them flowing nicely.

His topics and guests vary greatly, from the nitty gritty of trend following principles and technical analysis to big picture thinking on the markets. When planning for a road trip I always make sure I have episodes downloaded ready to play. Often interviews are so full of information and detail that I find myself repeating them to absorb as much as possible.

Michael has collated a vast catalogue of episodes where can you easily find many episodes to suit your interests.

I happened upon a Michael Covel video and decided that Trend Following fit my personality perfectly. I wanted to consume everything Michael has to say so I immediately ordered his Trend Following book and went to his podcast Episode 1. I have listened to every one that is available and I am up to 200+. He has some amazing people on his podcast. I really enjoy every little nugget of wisdom he and his guests share. This is a must have for anyone considering Trend Following.

★★★★★ A must!!!

by Brett Banks from United States on May 27, 2016

Dr. Van Tharp wrote "I don't know many people who have made money consistently following other people's advice." He was, of course, referring to the self-proclaimed gurus that offer promises of riches via their picks or black box systems. Once you understand his statement, you'll understand what a treasure trove Michael's writings and podcast have to offer. If you're looking for someone to hold your hand and babysit you through the learning process, you should probably move further down the "Top Podcasts" list to find something more suitable as you're likely to wind up "butt-hurt" listening to the truth. But, if you're ready to hear (really hear) what he's saying, Covel's stuff is truly invaluable.

Trend following as a trading strategy is rooted in an overarching philosophy to life, knowledge and the nature of the complex world around us. Michael Covel embodies this philosophy with his knack for extracting the essence of all guests who appear on his podcast.

I listen to his podcast daily and have listened to each episode at least twice – there is always something to learn; and then appreciate.

I encourage everyone to spread the word, so that Michael can bring the cause to a wider audience; and we can all benefit.

 ★★★★★ Myanmar/Vietnam Podcast
by stockbroker1 from Australia on Mar 28, 2016

Listening to this particular podcast, through and through, was so pleasing!
I have been to asia many times, and time and time again I have the experience of a lifetime.
I find western culture has lost it's way, big time! It is the people that make it what it is in asia. Going on sightseeing tours and staying in luxury hotels is not what it is all about. Of course mix it up somewhat, by changing the comfort zone. If you love the people in asia and go to observe and explore, by blending in, even as a tourist, then you will discover hidden treasures and experiences that you never thought possible or never envisioned, that will make you even want to stay and never return to a western nation. Being from a western nation has it's benefits, particularly if you want to live in asia. You will feel like a king, in the best and most humble way! I would like to do a further breakdown of this particular podcast soon. I grinned when Michael talked about how beautiful the the women look there, but tells them to beware the KFC. I strongly agree and say the same thing to people! Btw, KFC is excellent in China, makes you want to eat it there, no joke. In Australia, the KFC is very lardy and oily without taste and something to run away from, even at the thought of it.
Well done Michael Covel on this podcast and many more I have not listened to yet in the archives.

 ★★★★★ Trend Following Podcasts
by Dan Glushko from United States on Feb 23, 2016

If you are trying to learn about trend following then this series of podcasts can provide very important information for you. Michael Covell does a great job of covering a wide range of categories that revolve around mechanical and systematic trading approaches. Michael also does a great job of finding many smart and talented individuals and allows them to provide their perspectives, ideas, and approaches about profitable trading. Furthermore, there are many podcasts that deal with the mistakes traders make and examples of how average traders get lured into the media with constant answers and predictions. Overall, I recommend to get well acquainted with the information he has provided in his books and website and use the series of podcasts to continue gaining information about the subject of trend following.

Michael Covel is one of the more honest investment "gurus" out there. He has books, CDs and trading software for sale but he doesn't promise untold wealth to those who purchase them but only that the buyer may get a head start on acquiring trading knowledge. His books and movie are well worth the cost and the podcasts are free for the downloading.

Michael is a very good interviewer on a level with Marc Maron. He clearly does his homework for each guest. Each of his interviews is more of a discussion or of two friends talking than a question and answer session. He is never at a loss for words and keeps the interview flowing with insightful questions and comments. He has, for the most part, interesting and entertaining guests that come mostly from the investing arena but with some paleontologists, chess masters and yoga practitioners thrown in.

His podcasts won't give you the magic moving average for trading but will tell you the things you need to research in developing a trading plan. What you see is what you get. Michael's books and podcasts give investors a low cost way to get great ideas for investing, either with a money manager or by developing their own system. I have listened to other investment podcasts and I can truthfully say that this one is the best.

After listening to over 400 episodes, I can safely say this is the best podcast I've ever heard. If you're interested in trend following, trading, investing, economics, psychology, gambling, sports or entrepreneurship, this is for you.

The quality of the guests he has on is top notch. And unlike other interviewers who may argue with a guest they don't completely agree with, Michael politely probes his guests for more insights into their way of thinking.

If you don't learn something from listening, you must be brain dead. I honestly feel like I've gotten the equivalent of a college education, for free!

The first of Michael Covel's podcasts I listened was Ep. 378 where J.K. Rowling spoke in front of Harvard graduates about "failure" and boy I am hooked after that. That specific speech of hers literally gave me goose bumps. Now I am a regular listener of his podcasts. I have finished reading "The Complete TurtleTrader" and half way with "Trend Following". Great books with ton of insights and real data. While I have a full time job, I spend a couple of hours every morning trading. I have found Michael's books and podcasts extremely helpful to steer me towards the reality of the market. I am glad that I found you. Thank you so much for putting out the great interviews and everything else.

by DR. David O from United States on Oct 6, 2015

I really like the work Covel does. It's detailed and no non-sense. I'd like more interviews and information on shorter term (swing trading) based on trend trading. Most of the stuff discussed by experts is based on daily or weekly bars, where I assume most of his listeners who trade look at shorter time frames as well as those longer time frame trends. But enjoyable.

I love that sometimes you open your shows with a bit of hard rock or heavy metal. When I heard Children of the Grave to start one episode, I was like – no way. Beyond that, the variety of topics you cover and the logic and points you bring out are excellent. Sometimes I wonder if I were ever to get into a serious argument/debate with you, how I would fair. Then I think, no, you would just want this guy on your side. I like how you call out some of the mainstream fluff networks and their lackeys like Joe Kernan. It's not just financial media that tries to dumb down the public, it's all media. There's such an anti-intellectual bias in mainstream America which I always found extremely annoying. Anyway, keep up the great variety of information covered and your logical way of breaking down subjects. By the way, I'm a rocker too, when will you open the show with Unchained? Come on, Michael, no one is better than Eddie (VH), not Iron Maiden Eddie although he's cool too lol.

If you believe that the quality of your life is improved by a lifelong quest for learning, then this podcast is highly recommended for you. Mr Covel has assembled a diversly talented guest list who are more than willing to impart their considerable knowledge for your benefit. As Mr Covel hosts the podcast in the role of a student himself, you benefit from him asking the type of questions we would all like to ask. Perhaps though the greatest strength of the podcast is Mr Covel's silence. After asking a question, he then shuts up, so we can all get the benefit from the full and frank answers. That is how this podcast ends up being full of wisdom rather than "white noise". For example, if you are curious to know what it is like to travel in a car at over 600mph, what being a baker and a trader have in common and why successful people can struggle at trading. Then I recommend subscribing to this podacst.

Michael is not the nicest guy in the world but who cares! If you want to learn, stretch your self mentally and think outside of the box it's for you.

I don't like the vulgarisms that appear sometimes and negative energy regarding opposite type of thinking that Michael represents. Nevertheless if you can separate that from the essence of his message its absolutely worth of listening.
4 stars.

I have been listening for about a year, and hands down this is my favorite podcast. Even though most conversations are beyond my 'Murican public school education, there are very few I have not found interesting. His passion shows, and has rubbed off on me. In particular, an episode with Steve Burns led me to his work for new traders. This has really helped me to form a solid foundation, create a very basic system that works for me, and will lead to more complex systems as my knowledge and experience grow. Thanks for incredible effort you put into your work.

 ★★★★★ Good theoretical discussions, need more practical application by Dr. Duru from United States on Sep 6, 2015

I love this podcast for its theoretical, philosophical, and thematic discussions. But the typical detachment from what is happening right now in the market makes it less useful than it otherwise could be. For example, simply spending a few minutes at the beginning giving a trend following summary of where the market sits in the current moment would make a WORLD of difference.

I am not a trader, and especially not a trend following trader. That said, Michael's perspective is not common, refreshing and very pointed. All people who invest in markets should listen to his thoughts. Not to mention he has some pretty fantastic music / audio he snags for both the intro's (and throughout). I see dead people? AMAZING.

I've only listened to a half dozen but am eager to listen to more. I've never been a "system" type investor and am highly skeptical of any system, but investors really want a process or a system because it sounds repeatable and, frankly, buyable. Having read about many of the investors he cites, it's very difficult not to pay attention. I'm in. Thanks Michael.

Always listen to Michael's podcast. I have subscribed to them for years. I almost always enjoy and learn something from each one. I am partial to the ones with traders, such as Steve Burns, Jerry Parker, Tom Basso and Larry Tentarelli. These are guys that have actually done it. They can back up what they say. There are some podcasts that are a little different to say the least, ha ha, some of which I enjoy and some not so much. I loved the one with the file cabinet example to explain a computer. Keep it up Michael and to anyone thinking about these podcasts, I highly recommend them.

Covel is a tremendous content producer. This podcast is less a show about trend trading, and more a perspective on how to think, and live a process-driven life. I thoroughly enjoy the point of view Covell brings to the table about economics, finance and philosophy. I am far from his best student, and sometimes he even makes me angry, but majority of the time his information is pragmatic and implementable. I don't listen to every interview, although I'd say that I listen to a good 90% of them, but I never miss a monologue episode and wish they were more regular.

 ★★★★★ On being a contrarian!
by mickski_007 from United Kingdom on Jun 29, 2015

I forget how I came across Michael Covell's podcast, probably a random search! Before I subscribed, however, I started reading the reviews. The first one I read was from Goal Pie (reasonably negative and a poor review - 1 star). Now, being a contrarian in life, this is the kind of feedback that grabs my attention, so I took the plunge and decided to find out for myself what the podcast was about. Having spent the last 6 months paper/real trading a basket of differing strategies, mostly not my own, I decided it was time to create my own. Not wanting to re-invent the wheel I wanted to find a foundation upon which to build my Strategy. Everything I read, listened & watched pointed to Price Action, great I thought, I have the Foundation, now what? Then came Psychology, a personal journey of discovery about "Who I am!" and "How I want to trade!" It didn't take me long to realize that I don't have the stomach for Day Trading, Fear & Greed got the better of me on a regular basis. Now, I can say with the highest degree of confidence, that Automated Trend Following is the Strategy I am focused on developing. Having listened to around 50 podcasts and reading Trend Following, the data presented is very convincing. I know that I have a long way to go on my journey, but for the first time since I started watching the market's (2007 was when I first started looking at Trading, I then had a sabbatical to create my own company, kids etc. etc.) I feel that the path I am choosing is the right one. Anyway, enough of my pontifications, have a look for yourself with an open mind, look at the data and decide for yourself if this is the right path for you.
Thank you Mr Covell, and keep it up 'old bean'

by Trucker JohnZ from United States on Mar 31, 2015

These podcasts are a Godsend. I've read all the books(Wizards,etc) about the great traders, but somehow, the words never really sank in. It wasn't until I came across these podcasts that something clicked. I've been searching for some kind of "trader type" radio program to listen too while I am working as a truck driver everyday. These amazing stories, the excellent questions that Michael asks, unlike any other interviewer that I have ever heard. The best is, none of these traders give any "crystal ball " method for trading, but yet when your listening, somehow it gives you clarity in your own trading. I have bust out twice in the last 6 years(alot of truck driving overtime wasted), I found this podcast in Jan of 2015, I'm currently up 200% for 2015 thru March with a 50% drawdown in Feb. No doubt about it, I attribute it to listening to these podcasts. My system of trading hasn't changed, but I've gained so much confidence and I've lost the fear of the dreaded drawdown just by hearing what these traders have to say(yes, I actually thought I could get 1% a month, every month, for eternity). I wish there were a 100 stars to rate these podcasts with and I wish they were longer, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week! Michael, I don't even have enough words of gratitude to you. Thank you so much, and you better live to be 1000 years old and NEVER stop these podcasts. Just please give us more traders and entrepreneur's and a few less of those whackjob psychologist types. :)

 ★★★★★ Tabloid
by Sorosxxx from United Kingdom on Mar 31, 2015

The great thing about Covel's podcasts (and franchise) is the quality of his guests. He himself comes across as a radio DJ with only superficial understanding of modern trend following and the challenges in the industry. In a recent podcast his description of Bridgewater's strategies is typically naive and tabloid. In fact 'tabloid' is probably a very fitting adjective to sum up Covel's style. His lack of appreciation or understanding of his guests' strategies and analysis is only too obvious through the actual questions and the comments on the back of guests' answers. It's bordering on awkward at times. All this being said, the guests are often very high quality and as such the podcasts provides some good insight into the industry.

This is the best trend trading podcast that you should listen to. You get an inside look at some of the greatest trend following traders, how they think, view and trade the markets. The main reason I listen to Michael Covel's podcast is for growth in my trading and to be inspired by him and the top industry leaders in trend following. And if you haven't get Trend Commandments by Michael Covel, a must must must read by anyone trying to be a trend following trader.

by Wizkiddo from Sweden on Mar 7, 2015

This is a series of very interesting interviews by Michael Covel of successful traders, interspersed by episodes in which Covel shares his own thoughts and philosophies on how to do well as a trader and entrepreneur. Covel is a direct and frank person, calling things as he sees them, which makes for interesting interviews and discussions. As for the traders, it's always interesting to understand more about where they came from and how they've gone about to develop their approach to making money.

This podcast is clearly not for those who want the latest hot stock pick, but for anyone interested in a general approach to successful trading it's highly recommended.

I started listening because I was a fan of Covell's trading books. He still delivers great interviews with traders. What's really great though is all of the other incredible people he gets on his show to talk. Their fields of study/expertise range all over the map but there is always something interesting to learn. The one common thread in his guests is that he finds people who truly have found their calling and are going for it. It is truly inspirational.

Mike – as a former trend-following fund manager, I truly appreciate these podcasts. They paint an excellent picture of the trend-following world (from positive to negative).  ★★★★★ Best Trading Podcast HANDS DOWN by -Josh P from Canada on Feb 14, 2015

Working up in the oil rigs driving truck for 12 hours a day, I have the time to sort through MANY podcasts, it's exhausting. Most just don't have IT down or they drown you with advertisements. Out of all the junk you always find a few GEMS.

This podcast is a breathe of fresh air within the trading/investing category. No WOO to be found, no B/S, no TICKER of the day/week/month. It brings much needed simplicity out of the chaotic world of trading.

You have to appreciate that Michael puts it all out there for FREE considering the quality of the content and highly respected/accomplished guests that he is able to bring on his show. It's worth downloading all 318 episodes. Immerse yourself with great traders and pick out the qualities and wisdom this podcast has to offer.

Adding to that : The Little Book of Trading: Trend Following Strategy -

If your still trying to find you path in the game. I suggest you read it. It's a quick easy read that will change your perspective and open your eyes on how to play the game.

This was the cornerstone of information that changed my psychology and opened up a new lifestyle for my family. I see a lot more green in my account.

I believe Michael is genuine about helping people and truly passionate about trend following. There's just so much contradicting information out there. I've listened to over 200 hours of this show. I can't spot any dishonesty or inconsistencies in his personality. Great podcast, even my wife likes it (she's forced to listen to al my awesome material) lol

Thanks Michael!

I always enjoy the podcast. I'm a trader inclined toward trend following in my longer-term portfolio. The podcast has great guests and Michael throws interesting curve balls. The list of guests so far has been wide, varied and always interesting. There's no secret sauce recipe given out, but it's a great addendum for those who already know how to employ trend following or for those that want an introduction into trend following perspectives and culture as it applies to finance, trading and beyond.

I have read all of Michael's books and listen to his podcast on a regular basis. His books are very instructional and documented with discussions from successful trend following traders and studies. His podcasts are straight forward, informational and instructive. He has a broad list of interviewees who bring different views on the subject of systematic trend trading and psychology, which is very important. I highly recommend soaking up information on the topic and Michael Covel is the best single source.

 ★★★★★ Great Interviews for Traders
by HiHedge88 from Australia on Feb 3, 2015

Having read Covel's books (The Complete Turtle Trader, The Little Book of Trading etc...) I was pleasantly surprised to discover his podcast approx 6 months ago with 200+ interviews.

His podcast now has well over 300 interviews with top traders, money managers, authors, great thinkers, experts, Nobel winners et al. I can't find anyone who has brought such a rich set of interviews to the table week in week out.

Although I don't agree with all his views (I'm sure that's not his intent anyway), Michael offers the listener with interviews with leaders (and up & comers) in their respective fields – some are even generous enough to return multiple times to allow for more in-depth discussions. Hope you all find it as useful as I have.

I highly recommend subscribing to this podcast (2 interviews per week is just about right).

Thank you Michael.

Michael gets interviews with some of the greatest minds in finance and other fields. He doesn't push his trend following strategy except during his very short intro. I am not a trend follower. I may be quite the opposite. I am a buy and hold investor of passively managed funds. I set fairly wide bands to my asset allocation to take advantage of momentum. That's my only claim to trend following. I hope he keeps his show as is, and doesn't start to only invite "trend following" guests. One of the top five (any category) podcasts out there. Please have Larry Swedroe, Marc Faber and Jim Rogers back on the show. Keep up the great work Michael.

I have been following This podcast and Michael's interviews for a while now and i think its among the best you can find on the net for the following reasons: very interesting line up of interview partners, very wide array of topics, very well moderated by Michael, who has a very friendly, emphatic, yet professional style. And last but not least unpretentious (not trying to present his ideas or style as the only truth) and well organized (you can read/listen what is important to you, and if you want to go deeper on some subjects, everything is provided). I just hope one day i will be good enough to be interviewed by Michael, it would be a privilege and an honour.

Even as a short term FX trader - I find plenty of gems and in Covel's podcasts that help expand my knowledge base. Covel is clearly on the hunt for good guests in various fields, so there is some healthy variety of perspectives. I myself, always appreciate hearing interviews from traders etc. who operate outside the "trend following" sphere. For example - I thought the interview with Mike Bellafori from SMB Capital was excellent.

Dear Michael, thank you for your trendfollowing podcast. Trendfollowing and the advice I received from your podcast (esp. Ed Seykota, Tom Basso, Alexander Elder) as well as your books, changed my trading from mediocre to great. Besides that I am very happy that you interview so many great minds, who at first sight are not directly connected to trading. Many of the insights from those guests have broadened my horizon immensely, e.g. Ryan Holiday, Robert Greene and Rolf Dobelli. I think it would be interesting to interview Tim Ferriss, Tony Robbins, Peter Thiel, Elon Musk as well as Nassim Taleb and it would be great to motivate Marc Faber to have a second interview with you. His appearance was amazing. Thanks again and please keep on doing your marvellous work. Best regards, Joerg Kullwitz, Singapore

For years, I've gravitated only toward financial pod-casts and I subscribe to seven. My ears are always occupied. My favorite pod-cast is Trend Following with Michael Covel. The guest are outstanding, the quality of interview is tops, the occasional non-financial discussions always provide as much value as the financial discussions. Well done Michael! Because pod-casting has become such an important part of my way of learn my dog get a nightly walk, my wife thinks I am exercising, and my mind is getting enriched. Have listened to almost all the podcasts that Mike has done. Overall, they are great in that the guests are very knowledgeable and Mike has a great way of extracting valuable information and insights through clever interviewing. I do however ask that a non trend follower be invited to give their side of the story just so their point of view can be heard (I understand it is a trend following podcast before someone points out!!) I hope we can have more of van tharp (that is where the holy grail lies in my humble opinion!)

great job Mike and carry on the good work..

Michael Covel's book, Trend Following, in my opinion, is one of the best books in the marketplace on trading. In both his books and his Podcast, he blends timeless wisdom (cut losses short, let winners run), psychology, and, in a way spirituality (being in the moment, acknowledging "not knowing," simplicity, etc..) "Trend following" is really a way of life, not just a trading system.

 ★★★★★ Feedback as Requested

I very much appreciated and enjoyed the interview with Daniel Simons. For those who understand long-term trading with momentum (which also means Trend Trading), the podcasts are very educational. Simons was way different kind of interview (in my opinion) and open me up to a new area of study - applying simans insights into behavioral economics. I wrote a blog for years, and no one commented. It was discouraging: so Mr. Covel thank you for the podcasts. You asked what I would like to hear covered? How about the good, the bad and the ugly with academic studies on Momentum? Or modern portfolio allocation and rebalancing?

Loved episode 308. I am half way through Covel's Trend Following book--terrific read, doubly so for those that traded through the events described--and my only disappointment is that I didn't find this book--earlier versions--and these podcasts a decade or two ago. I know I should have turned CNBC off long ago but haven't developed the willpower yet. These podcasts are going to help a lot with that. And now I know the best way to answer the most popular trading questions: "There's no earthly way of knowing..."

This is the best podcast I listen to. The quality of the guests Michael gets is amazing. Michael is a talented interviewer and conducts engaging conversations with the guests. One of the great things Michael does is asks the guests to give contact points for further investigation at the end of the interviews. I have learnt a great deal by looking up the work of the guests I find interesting. I would advise listening to all the interviews and spending time looking into the subjects of interest. His conspiracy intro and outro is a bit strange but it is a small price to pay for the rest of the content.

It will take some time to catch up on all the episodes but I am enjoying every one of them. Thank you!

★★★★★ Overall an insightful podcast

by Dr JT from United States on Jan 8, 2015

Great line up of guests. Wide array of topics related with trend following investing are covered with a few off-topic podcast episodes. Covell is a die-hard advocate for trend following which can be good and bad. Good in that you get to learn new perspective in a type of investing not discussed much by the main stream media; bad because he is overzealous in defense of his style of investing and appears to imply that no other type of investing is worthwhile. As the saying goes, there is more than one way to skin a cat. On balance, a good podcast if you can tolerate the occasional rants.

If you are looking to trade the markets then this podcast is a must. You will gain insights from some of the best traders in the world that manage not only millions but billions of dollars. Don't waste your time watching CNBC, learn from the best, what mistakes they've made, what works and what doesn't work, this is real education, knowledge and experiences you won't find anywhere else! Besides the emphasis on trend following trading, Michael invites other guests in other fields as well. You will learn on other topics that touch the markets like psychology, business, entrepreneurship, philosophy, politics and so on, making you a more complete and wiser trader. You will learn that trends are in your everyday life, from sports to the weather, from business (if you don't follow trends you'll probably go out of business), from technology to politics, trends are everywhere, so logically you should follow trends in markets.

...however Mr. Covel encourages them, and after listening to his podcasts for over a year now (for free although I would pay), probably the least I could do...

YES YES YES I agree totally (been trading for over 35 years now) nobody has a clue what the future holds. He talks about the crude oil collapse in this week's podcast (don't remember any 'expert' predicting that one). I trade grains a lot and my birthday in Aug of 2012 was the top day for corn. That day, the USDA predicted a massive surge in corn prices based on corn yields shriveling up...and that was on the TOP day. This same basic story is repeated over and over and over again in the financial press, just fill in the market.

My trading philosophy is to a) determine the trend, b) ride it until there's market evidence it's changed and c) because I cannot predict (only follow) use good money management (cut the losers, maximize the winners) with a position sizing strategy. I know from years of experience that Michael Covel is correct in his approach to achieving success in the markets. As Livermore once said, "It is literally true that millions come easier to a trader after he knows how to trade than hundreds did in the days of his ignorance" Thank you for sharing your wisdom Michael!

by MissingJune from United States on Dec 27, 2014

This podcast is golden if you enjoy great diverse guests and opinions. For some of Michael's guest, this is the only place to hear them interviewed. There are the obvious standouts like Jerry Parker, Tom Basso, Jack Schwager, and the various Nobel laureates (!), in addition to lesser know folks like Larry Williams, Peter Brandt; they all provide invaluable lessons and insights on trading, economics and life and I'm grateful that they share so freely on this podcast. One of my favorite books of the year came from this show, Fortune's Formula.

Mike, you're also a pretty good interviewer! I like that you give your guests room talk and go down perhaps unexpected roads while still guiding them along a path for the listener. I hear a lot of interviewers on podcasts that seem to like to talk about the themselves more than to the guests (Barry Ritholtz, love you man, but you need to simmer down...!).

Video would be an obvious cool addition, although I really like the audio only aspect for listening in the car or on a walk. Another interesting twist would be more than one guests at a time, perhaps with differing view points (however, without getting into an argumentative panel type show.)

Thanks for 300+!

Great interview of two people who follow the trend following method of asset allocation.

I had never heard of Covenant Capital but was intrigued by their grand slam approach rather than going for singles. Michael also has great guests on that deal with the mental aspect of trading (and life) as well as guests with great health and wellness information. I listen to podcasts whenever I am in my car, typically running errands or shuttling the kids. The number one podcast in my rotation is Covell's podcast on trend following. I started listening to because of my interest in investing, but the value is much broader. Michael not only seems to get interesting people in the world of investing, but other interesting folks as well, who are tangentially related to investing. If you like the interview and want to learn more on the subject, the podcast includes where to go for that information. I enjoy it.

★★★★★ Undoubtedly worthwhile

I have been listening to Michael Covell's podcast in a practically religious manner for over a year. As an avid podcast listener it is easy to get overwhelmed by the availability of content – yet this podcast never fails to be enlightening, informative, thought provoking and quite fun. It lacks neither breadth nor depth. Making it easy to look forward to new episodes.

In short, it is highly recommendable to anyone who has an intellectual interest in finance even if one is not an orthodox trend follower.

It's timeless! I work 50 miles away and everyday I spend the time going and coming back from work listening to Michael and learning a lot! Some of the episodes I heard twice or even more! He absolutely changed my way of trading. I've also read his book Trend Following and bought Trend Commandments. Keep going on, Michael!

This podcast is a gold mine of information and insight. Each episode has provided me with nuggets to reflect on as I continue on my journey towards financial freedom. It is no exaggeration that the content of Covel's conversations have enabled me to change my life. I've learned more from listening and researching the work of his guests than I did doing my MBA.

Whatever you think of Covel's style, he gets some great guests on his podcast. The guests do most of the talking, which is great, and they really get in depth with the subject most of the time. Even for non traders, most of the episodes are interesting. If you think about it, we are all trading something. Highly enjoyable and recommended.

★★★★★ Best Podcast on iTunes!

by Brooks Perkins from United States on Nov 22, 2014

Hands down, this is the best podcast on iTunes. If you're an investor/trader, analyst, economist, risk manager, or even if you're just simply interested in learning, this podcast is required listening.

I first became familiar with Michael Covel and trend following after coming across one of his books back in 2011. It completely opened my eyes to a world that I didn't know existed at the time. Ever since I've been hooked, and I owe this evolution in understanding to Mr. Covel. Not only did this dramatically change my approach to markets and trading, but the lessons learned ultimately transcended into other areas of my life as well.

His podcasts, besides being inspiring and fun to listen to due to both the content discussed and the character of the guests that he invites on, are unique in that you'll come away from each episode with a new idea or different perspective on something. You will not hear these types of discussions taking place anywhere else, I can assure you. Regardless of who you are or what your background is, Covel and his guests have valuable lessons and insights to offer listeners based upon years of research and experience. Covel speaks directly to his listeners, and is a gifted interviewer who is not afraid to ask his guests tough questions that his listeners benefit from.

Having read all of his books several times and listened to all of his podcasts, I highly encourage others to do the same. If you're unfamiliar with trend following, not to worry. Listen to a few episodes, do a little research online, and read one of Covel's books. Trust me, it's worth it!

"Trend Following with Michael Covel" has been accompanying me in my long-distance runs, my public commuting, my drives and even my ironing sessions. It has educated me much in trend following, trading, entrepreneurship, economics, psychology, and so much more. It contains gems. It has given me a sense of business purpose to pursue Covel and his guests' work which outstrip what a university program can offer. Almost everything I listen to here can be applied at once. Anyone on iTunes not listening to this is doing himself/herself a huge disfavor.

I am a 23 year old who has recently taken the dive into trading. Liberal arts grad looking for something better. I am pretty much self-taught, and the hardest part of that (especially with systematic trading) is trust. It is very tough to tell who is a trusted source. You have to worry about his/her agendas, biases, views, likable, PLUS intelligent and sharp. I like to think I have a good judge of character, but I do not know very many people like that in my life. Covel sometimes comes off as a little like a conspiracy theorist, but I am pretty sure I do trust him and his guests. His guests are 75% great btw.

Every show is good, but about every other episode I take a step back and think I really learned something incredible from this. It blows my mind. I can't wait to listen to more.

I've learned a lot and it gave me more courage. Moreover I've discovered other authors whom I've dismissed at some point in time. As for critics, don't take it personally. Myself 4 - 5 years ago I could not read your books because "I was not there". I was stuck in technical analysis and entries and exits completely dismissing the rest. Sooner or later we, the dedicated ones, will get there. Bottom line, after listening to your podcasts I became profitable - only in last year after listening to your podcasts and reading your first book, and three others authors. Also, good job interviewing others who are not necessary trend followers.

by Jimmy from NY from United States on Oct 7, 2014

I listen to most of Michael's podcasts from start to finish. They are great. He interviews some of the best traders, academics, and investors in the world and asks them in-depth, detailed, and thought-provoking questions. I listen, and every time I learn. I really mean it, turn off the radio and listen to some of these podcasts and you will possibly become smarter, but certainly become more thoughtful.

Michael is also a great resource for the latest books and whitepapers out there (which I often download and purchase).

His podcasts are well balanced so that both a novice, and a seasoned investor, can learn. Congrats on your list of interviews Michael – academics, investors, authors, and even some off the wall (the woman who talked about behavioral finance and monkeys was refreshing!)

Keep up the good work. I enjoy the traders and academics the most. Thank you.

Michael Covel has not only done a great job delivering excellent content, but he delivers a high quality sound. I've heard many other podcasts that had good content with poor sound quality. I have been listening to Michael Covel's podcasts for more than a year now and it keeps getting better and better. The podcasts are very informative especially if someone is a systematic trend following trader and even if not, the guests span a very large spectrum. The messages and the information are very enlightening and very positive to lead a very healthy and a peaceful life. Michael's questions are very well researched and brings a lot out of his guests. I have gained a lot from these podcasts personally and hopefully get to listen more of these in the future. Keep up the good work, Michael.

I've listened to many podcasts over the years and have listened to this podcast for over a year and have to say Mike is able to assemble the best guests and insights regarding what is going on in the markets and economy today. Nobel laureates, top scholars in economics and behavioural finance, legendary traders, entrepreneurial mavens, occasional odd-ball but interesting guests, and a personal rant now and then. There is no other media outlet that curates such a high quality of relevant content to traders and investors today. I have to say of all the financial and trading podcasts I've listened to, Mike's has given me the most actionable and profitable information of all of them.

Michael covel's podcast's title might be a little misleading. Though Michael is a strong advocate of an investment practice known as trend following, his podcast goes way beyond the narrow focus of this particular (and essential) style of trading.

Michael has a knack for bringing in the most brilliant and unexpected minds, and most importantly lets them speak. This is not your basic radio/tv-show/trendy-podcast. This is real educational and actionable (but not in a push button way) stuff.

Be you a trader, someone interested in finance and markets, or – as i primarilly was – someone with an interest in knowledge, you wont loose your time.

While you certainly learn about top traders and their methods, the trendfollowing podcast with Mike Covel is NOT simply a podcast about investing or trading. I've now listened to over 50 episodes and I can say with authority that this is the best podcast on investing by a long shot. The calibre of talent that Micael interviews and the insights his guests offer are unrivaled anywhere else. Regardless of your "investment philosophy", if you are interested in trading you need to listen to Trend Following. I am not a trend follower per se, but I agree with most of what Michael says and as a result I've also read two of his books, both of which I would recommend (Trend Following and Turtle Trader). As some other reviewers have mentioned, a small percentage of his podcasts are monologues, some of which are less than stellar.

So far I've listened to more than 50 episodes and am extremely pleased with the podcast. As some of the other comments have mentioned, there's two basic types of podcasts. Interviews and monologues.

Michael has some amazing contacts in the trend following world and also has the ability to interview some of those contacts (it was actually the name of one of his interviewees that led me to the podcast in the first place, Marc Faber).

The monologues are ... self explanatory? Michael explains a point of view, shares a conversation, or plays audio clips and provides valuable insights as needed.

You can definitely tell that Michael is knowledgeable and passionate about the topic of trend following. My one suggestion on improvement is make sure the passion doesn't come across as anger.

Word of caution to other listeners, if you're looking for the "best" strategy or "perfect" way to time the market, you won't find it here. You will, however, discover how you should think about investing, find new sources of information, and get educated all in an enjoyable, informative way.

Enjoy!

Michael creates two types of podcasts. One is his own thoughts, which can be a bit histrionic. I would rate these a 3. But his interviews of other people are fabulous! Lots of great material and the quality of his interviewees is as high as ever. My one small criticism is Covel sometimes seems to veer into viewing trend following as the ONLY possible successful trading strategy, but that really is a small criticism. Covel is great at debunking the drivel on a great deal of the financial news media these days and accurately portrays the difficulties faced by traders that inhabit the real world. I try to never miss one of Covel's podcasts now.

This completely changed my approach to trading. After stumbling on the podcast last year, this led to reading the books. Despite the odd intro where a Siri-like voice tells you about "entering an investing state of mind", Michael Covel's Podcast is both entertaining and intellectually stimulating. I love being a fly on the wall for conversations between Michael and some of the best thinkers in the world. The podcast doesn't teach you step by step the trend following strategy, but rather, gives insights about how to achieve a trend following (trader) lifestyle... a life of monetary and intellectual freedom with no more cubicles. Michael will inspire you to learn to fish on your own. I would encourage any young investor to crack open his book, Trend Following, and learn a bit about price action. Covel's guests are top-notch and he is becoming a better and better interviewer. He encourages his audience to travel, experience the world and live life the way they want to live it. As a young professional who sits in a cubicle and listens to the podcast, it provides hope for a better price tomorrow. I always learn something new, but most of all it's a fun listen. Thanks Michael

I have been listening to Covel's podcast for the last year and a half now and I always look forward to it. He has great guests that he interviews from all different walks of life and invokes thought provoking discussions. I enjoy hear his perspective on things as well, whether it is the state of the economy, living in Asia or being an entrepreneur. I might not always agree with him on all issues, but I appreciate where he is coming from and the valid points he makes.

Some people may complain that he doesn't actually talk about strategies. Well he runs a business so you should probably reach out to him to help develop your own strategy that he can help guide you through. Besides, do you really want someone going on a podcast once a week telling you trades to make as you blindly follow? You can find that nonsense on other podcasts or CNBC, but this podcast has great discussion on trading, state of the economy, risk, traveling or being an entrepreneur.

by George Cotton from United Kingdom on Jan 24, 2014

I've only just come across Covel's trend following radio, but have been familiar with his work for years. What an amazing wealth of knowledge with interviews with some of the greatest traders (Morales) and trading educators (Schwager), and cool guests from other fields (like cal Newport).

Do yourself a favour and subscribe, he's churning them out at a heck of a pace. Loads of useful advice and stories.

Keep it up Michael! Fighting the good fight for sense in your investment analysis.

Mr. Covel's podcasts come in two flavors, 1) Mr. Covel's interesting insights in Financial Policy, Investing in General, Trend Following more specifically, and the spirit and motivation to an entrepreneurial life of excellence through location independence, and 2) thoughtful and interesting interviews. After listening to these podcasts, I come away more knowledgable and self reflective. I have listened to these podcasts from their inception; they have made me a more successful trader and entrepreneur. Do yourself a favor and start listening and learning.

 ★★★★★ The best way to trade the markets.
by iClaptrap from United States on Jan 11, 2014

Michael Covel does an amazing job of teaching trend following and explaining the truth about how the markets work. Trend following is by far the best way to trade the financial markets (all of them) over the long term (10-44+ years). Because trend following is a system that is based on proven probabilities and odds and does not rely on luck. Anyone who wants to make money in trading should listen to Michael and give his trading philosophy serious consideration.

Michael does good interviews, and gets interesting people to share their opinions and experiences. He is very good at finding alternative opinions, and people who think outside-the-box. This is a very enriching experience to hear from people who do not normally come in the news or magazines.

The only downside is that his views are very concerned about the American political scene and the current state of the American government. Non-American listeners might not be so interested in this side of his podcasts.

by Charlie Newsome from United Kingdom on Jan 2, 2014

Michael Covel has been doing this podcast for a while now, he has some great guests, and offers some sensible investment advice, yes he has an agenda, but it is a good one, with sound principles and an honest approach, that offer ordinary investors a way to manage their money, with a proven methodology.

I think its a sound approach to investing that offers so much, that is missing for from our world. There is no quick route to financial freedom, but there are many that be very costly to investors, this isn't one of them, but you need to work for it, like most things in life. Good luck.

★★★★★ Michael Covel's podcasts

by vikasrao from United States on Jan 2, 2014

Michael Covel interviews some great guests on his podcast, and thats the part I love about his podcast. When he allows the guests to go deep into a topic, the interviews are tremendous.

Things I dislike about these podcasts? Michael Covel constantly diverts conversations into meaningless speculation about fed policy or starts a monologue about value investing and buy-and-hold. Good to hear once, but not on every podcast! Also, he over all tends to talk like a "know-it-all".

Michael, allow guests to talk more about topics they're good at and stop trying to be a "life" coach.

★★★★★ Most Valuable Financial Podcast

by Ross Hendricks from United States on Jan 1, 2014

This is, by far, the most valuable financial podcast out there. One year ago I stumbled across Covel's podcasts and books, and from there I have not only learned to successfully trade my own account, but I've followed through with enough personal research to land myself a job with a trend following firm. Covel cuts through the mainstream financial propaganda to uncover the trading strategies that have worked for decades, and does it in an interesting and entertaining way.

Finally found a mentor

by RaphaelW from Switzerland on Dec 31, 2013

Never really had a great mentor during my 12 year career in the trading industry. Glad, I finally found one in Michael.Those podcasts, together with his books and courses are the single best source of wisdom on trend following trading, which interestingly can be applied to many subjects in life.

I was introduced to the critical success factors of positive expectancy models, risk management and process wich result into using a 100% systematic strategy, and also be confident in what you do and believe in, even 99% of the crowd is doing it differently.

I was introduced to great characters through the podcast, that I've never heard of before. People that are successful because they do things different from anyone else. True inspiration!

In short: If you want to get to a nice place to trade from (ignore the noise, be calm when trading, trade less and make more) and be able to stay there, check out Michael's work.

Michael Covel's material in his podcasts, as well as his books, unleash the true potential of what's possible when it comes to a disciplined and returns-driven investment style. If you really want to get serious about outperforming, pay attention to what Covel's putting out there.

Why Trend Following? Unlike anyone else Michael Covel has the documented track records to prove the returns of Trend Following investors and fund managers. Why my review? I've implemented trend following in my own investment style and, to put it lightly, have and continue to outperform.

★★★★★ Covel's plan...

by Luis.0 from United States on Mar 2, 2013

It's not to give you a magic formula, but rather pointing you in the direction of a proven, successful trading philosophy that starts with the assumption (and reality) that neither you, nor anyone else for that matter, knows what's gonna happen in the markets.

In that vein, the value Covel's books, and this podcast, are analogous to a swift kick in your behind, so that you GET UP and make it happen for yourself.

★★★★★ A Relentless Journey – Who's John Galt

by Operation Skew from Switzerland on Dec 23, 2012

Congratulations Michael Covel, you just completed your 100th podcast and I felt it is about time to post a review.

It is not the number that is important but rather Mike's relentless journey to differ from mainstream – media, government, group thinking, herding. To spread the word... to keep this process going... to 'praise' trend following. His blog dates back to April 3rd 2004 and I have been a reader almost since. All his books are entertaining, well written, give insights you will not learn at university, in any MBA class or courses. The facts presented speak for themselves... it's all there, people just have to be open and willing to accept it... to let the 'unimaginable' sink in... to question assumptions, theories, analysts, financial talking heads, and probably almost the way you looked at markets, trading and profits... the big bucks require a bold, self-conscious mindset.

There are two podcast formats: monologues and interviews (the first three episodes are not available via iTunes). While I do not agree with everything Mike puts out there, we certainly share the mindset and I acknowledge his deserved success to make things happen... to get out there and question... to dig and uncover. These podcasts teach you lessons for life. The concepts presented, the ideas discussed go far beyond trading and trend following. His monologues mostly represent rants about a topic hotly debated in the media, a personal experience or a book/saying he came across. However, more importantly he wants you to think... to read books he relates to, e.g. Ayn Rand's Atlas Shrugged, The Fountainhead or Seth Godin's Blog. The interview guests range from 'hidden' traders – there's also an original Turtle –, to self-made investors, CTAs and start-ups. You will realize that most of these successful money managers have quite some traits in common with Jack Schwager's book series 'Interviews with Top Traders'.

I really encourage all of you to take the time and listen to some podcasts. Of course, we all have different preferences of what we like but following a list of my top podcast (no specific order): Tom Basso Part I and II, Jason Gerlach, Original Turtle Michael Shannon, Tom Pickering, Mebane Faber, Steve Brechtel, Larry Tentarelli, Francisco Vaca. Enjoy the ride & enjoy life.

 ★★★★★ Not Just For Trading But A New Way of Living
by Posillicod from United States on Dec 14, 2012

Nothing you will ever hear from Mike comes from a textbook or manual. It's not your fathers buy and hold anymore.. Forget the media and so-called experts in finance or even the education or political system. Trend following is a mindset for a way of life where uncertainty is embraced and common sense prevails. I love the way Mike proves that everything we have been taught to do and just conform to the "matrix" that is society is complete nonsense. Red pill or Blue pill... No Thanks I choose Trend Following, hard work and the drive to be a successful individual seeking freedom. Keep the fight alive Mike!!

by dds089 from United States on Nov 10, 2012

Michael Covell's podcast are truly a gift to anyone looking to learn how to make money in the markets. After reading his books I started listening to the podcast from the very first episode and I am now up to episode 23+. Every pod cast has delivered a gem of information as well as re-confirmed that in order to become financially independent and solve the solution of being a wage slave I would need a paradigm shift away from the false information and memes propagated by education and professional service in the area of investments. The perspective of the guest along with Covell's books and the recommended books from the podcast are a great primer to figuring out a strategy on what it will take to become a trader.

 ★★★★★ Trend Following
by Charlie Newsome8 from United Kingdom on Sep 27, 2012

I love these podcasts, they are thought provoking and show investors a way to begin to really understand the trend following space. There are no easy ways to financial freedom, and Michael offers no secret formula, or sauce, but it does show you it can be done, it is achievable by normal people and this is so clearly demonstrated by motivation discussions and many points to map out your future route.

The future has one thing assured, it's up to us to ensure that we look after ourselves, not the state or politicians.

Good luck!

Charlie.

Excellent content, tells it like it is. Very insightful, and meaningful topics revolving around trading, psychology, and politics. Consistent focus is on trend following, but offers a holistic view of the strategy. Reveals the holes and glitches abound in society which prevent those from achieving the success they've dreamed of. Listen to the podcasts, buy his books, and spread the word. I am not a paid member of his staff or anything, but if you are seeking someone who is not afraid to deliver a straight-up, no-nonsense approach to offering you an opportunity to succeed, then Mike will not disappoint. More people need to surface and reveal what he is revealing. Finding truth is something that becomes harder each day.

I am a professional systems trader – focused primarily on global futures markets – involved in the design and operation of both trend-following and mean-reversion strategies. Unsurprisingly, much of what Michael Covel and his guests have to say resonates deeply with me. It has literally taken me over a decade to really deeply learn what Michael and his guests openly discuss in these podcasts. The interviews he makes available for free are absolutely invaluable, particularly for those ambitious enough to do their homework.

★★★★★ Great stuff

Great guests, think the 1 star review is a bit harsh – tough cramming so much into 45–60mins – but enough to give some insight as to what these traders are about – I have certainly had a few light bulb moments listening to a couple of these guys – I don't know Mr Covel but he seems to come in for a bit of unnecessary criticism – end of the day the guy is running a business. Keep up the good work!

★★★★★ invest/trade with confidence, and sleep well at night :)

by ruby20100 from Australia on Sep 4, 2012

Michael's podcasts, a mix of interviews and philosophy, are informative, engaging, and above all honest. You'll be hooked after only a few listens. He explains how trend following gives every investor, large or small, a chance to succeed, irrespective of what the politicians are saying or how far the markets are from the next "boom". With so many investors burned by the GFC, doesn't it make sense to investigate a genuine alternative to the "whatever you do, don't sell" mantra of, sadly, the vast majority of experts in the finance business? Michael is the key to that alternative outlook. Give him a try.

★★★★★ great guests, but poor interviews

by Goal Pie from United Kingdom on Sep 2, 2012

This is a real shame. Michael is clearly very knowledgeable about trading, has produced a very professional sounding podcast and has some outstanding guests. However having listened to many of the podcasts, sadly I feel that that he just doesn't really listen to his interviewees, often clumsily crow barring in points of his own that he wishes to make, rather than engaging in a genuine dialogue. This makes for a poor podcast which I'm no longer subscribing to.

The recent Charles Faulkner interview is a particular example of this. There are many points at which you can sense that Charles is slightly thrown by the responses Michael gives to things Charles has said. Michael simply hasn't listened to the point he was making. For example when Charles talks about 'negative framing' with kids when you say "don't fall", Michael completely misses the point and just talks about some other issue.

Michael comes across as a little arrogant, drops names and is pushy in asking people to buy his books "to contribute". The best podcasters don't need to do any of this to generate income, and it just completely put me off buying any of his books/courses.

★★★★★ Where else can you get access to so many experienced traders

by ETF Trend Trader from Canada on Sep 1, 2012

I trend trade ETF's so Michael is preaching to the converted in my case. As an individual investor, I find many of the interviews to be incredibly interesting. Michael has access to so many great individuals, be they traders, writers, etc, that the typical one hour interview oftentimes provides much food for thought for traders. Some of the guests are well known names but others aren't so well known but nonetheless have valuable lessons to offer from their trading experience. Don't expect a step-by-step guide to the development of a trading system. However, if you have developed or are developing your own personal trend following system you will relate to the experiences of Michael's guests.

Like a lot of listeners here, I found out about Michael Covel through his first two books, Trend Following and The Complete Turtle Trader. When I read those books, a light bulb went on for me and it was like YES!!! That was exactly the kind of information and trading style I was looking for, and it just made sense to me. I became a student of Michael's and have used a Trend Following strategy ever since. I used to listen to the podcasts a few years ago, but I've got to say what Michael is doing now is WAY more interesting. The conversational style is different, and it really helps me from a trading perspective to hear the views of like minded people. Not that everyone on the program has the same opinion, but I think Michael has a great conversational style and always manages to bring it back around to a relevance from a trend follower's perspective. For me, this is a very welcome change from the constant barrage of mainstream media news, and it's awesome to hear there are so many people out there with similar beliefs. Thanks for the podcasts Michael, and PLEASE keep the conversation going!

by DJ/Berkutchi from United States on Aug 24, 2012

Covel is one of the top 2 or 3 authors on investing, and his books are raising the current generation of the world's best traders. He has been pounding the table for years on the best methods and techniques to beat the market whether it's 1999 or 2008 – and writing about the traders who have done just that. Some of the best traders and money managers in the biz are in his books and on this podcast. Covel cuts to the quick and gets deep into the process and mentality of these successful trend followers. Entertaining and insightful, this is the best podcast available on investing in my opinion.

If trend following is a religion, Michael Covel will be the god. But not in that sense of coz. If you can only read only 1 author's work, Michael will be the chosen one. With his books. Video, websites and podcasts, that's the only resources you will need to make that big profits with calculated risks. My advice is to study them all before you read other author's works.

★★★★★ Best Podcast on Investing

by Quasi Ramblings from United States on Aug 16, 2012

I have downloaded and listened to a lot of different podcasts from Bloomberg, APM, Morningstar and the usual casts of characters. They all provide stories and explanation for the days events in the market.

This podcast does not do that. No stories about markets, no ridiculous guesses about why something happened. It provides the foundation for developing a system to help you make good investment decisions.

★★★★★ Great Podcast

by JB Wright from United States on Aug 12, 2012

This is truly my favorite podcast. I find the interviews to be the most informative and am blown away at some of the amazing people Mr. Covel is able to bring in. There always seems to be a nugget of gold in each one.

★★★★★ Really nice interviews with trend follower traders

by kkkwj from Canada on Aug 11, 2012

I've read several of Covel's books, and really really liked the Turtle Trader book in particular. Now I can also listen to these in-depth podcasts with knowledgeable people in the trading industry, so the Covel/Trend Following/ "independent / contrarian thinking" story continues. I love listening to the podcasts while working in the kitchen -- they make me think, and the stories inspire me to do a better job of thinking out-of-the-box myself. Well done, MC!

★★★★★ A great listen

These podcasts are really well done and the amount of information, especially from the interviews is invaluable. Anyone wanting to learn about what makes the mind of a trend trader tick should subscribe to this podcast.

★★★★★ Essential listening for traders

Fantastic podcast series, highly recommended listening for any trader/investor . The interviews are brilliant. I listen to them several times each and pick up new ideas in every episode.

Great interviews with top traders.

★★★★★ Trend Following Manifesto

by Van Beek 101 from Netherlands on Aug 9, 2012

Michael Covel is een uitgesproken voorstander van de beleggingstrategie "trend volgen". Dit laat hij duidelijk merken in z'n boeken en in z'n podcast. Het beste aan de podcast vind ik de interviews met traders, media experts en economen. Zijn afgeven op de politiek boeit me iets minder.

Maar als je dus boeken zoals het bekende "Market Wizards" (niet van Covel; interviews met traders) iets vond, dan is deze podcast aan te raden. Ook als je je beleggingshorizon wilt verbreden of geïnteresseerd bent hoe je zelf je eigen vermogen kunt beheren, kan deze podcast je wat ideeën geven. Het is natuurlijk wel allemaal wat Amerikaans en in het Engels, maar daar kun je doorheen kijken.

Zelf ben ik ook een "trend volger" met het Stock Trend Investing systeem, dus ik ben misschien iets bevooroordeeld. Oordeel zelf.

 ★★★★★ Great Podcast
by Davey nels from United States on Aug 9, 2012

Covel has an interesting take on focusing on the present and not pretending to be able to divine & predict the future. He is up front about his political views and does well divorcing his wants, ideals & views from the actual situation at hand. It's a very refreshing podcast and his interviews are very insightful and interesting. Occasionally covel gets on his soap box to motivate, but I would probably actually pay to subscribe to this podcast. It's free, good, definitely check out the jack Schwagger interview

 ★★★★★ Great stuff
by JJ9001 from United States on Aug 1, 2012

I have been reading Covels books for quite a while and also have been listening to his podcasts. All of them are great:

- 1) Its a great starting point for anybody initiating int markets
- 2) Great motivation stuff and would test your fundamentals to the core
- 3) Passionate about the process and also bottom-line focussed

All in all i think its a great starting point for an unbiased view on how to benefit and make money from markets.

 ★★★★★ Excellent resource – a college level trading education by Damien Calloway from United States on Jul 27, 2012

I have learned more about trading, business, money management, and psychology in a few hours than I have in two semesters in my business administration and psychology classes in college. This podcast connects all of the dots – prepare to take notes and Google during those interviews, because that is where the meat is. Stuff you would never find anywhere else....

 ★★★★★ Boring and uninformative
by Larry7985 from United States on Jul 20, 2012

It's not entertaining or informative. Watching paint dry would have been more entertaining and probably more informative.

 ★★★★★ JUST LISTEN
by alpinebolt from United States on Jul 19, 2012

This Podcast is great and the interviews are Fantastic. The beauty of the stock market is that there are many roads to wealth and most of them work you just have to have a plan. The retail investor has no idea really the machine they are up against. People just want easy money and tips. Just tell me what to buy. Well that's the fastest way to lose it all and that's the complaint against Covel. He doesnt show us. But if you read his books and listen to this podcast. He does. You are the biggest enemy in your investing life. You have to control fear and greed. The stock market is like a different language and you need to read and listen to podcasts like this. and it will take time. Read Trend Following by Covel and Reminiscences of a stock operator and Market Wizards and you need to have some trading rules and stick to them. If you stick to your rules and you lose that's ok. You have to have sell rules when it breaks your other rules. Trend Following is about limiting your losses and letting your winners run until it breaks your Trend. Listening to Successful traders is PRICELESS.

 ★★★★★ Essential Financial Listening
by dave_eck from Australia on Jul 18, 2012

A must listen for anyone managing their own money who wants to avoid the pitfalls of the classical buy & hold mantra! A very refreshing take on growing and protecting your financial position for the future in un-certain times. The guest speakers from around the world provide a great break from the normally US centric conversations of other podcasters! I highly recommend that you listen to at least 5 episodes before you decide to stay with it or move on.

 ★★★★★ A must listen for serious traders by El_Gordito from Canada on Jul 17, 2012

After reading Covel's Trend Following book almost a year ago I knew this was the approach for me.

This podcast is a great bonus. His interviews provide rare direct access to the stories behind successful traders, how they started out and why they adopted trend following.

I strongly urge younger traders to listen to these podcasts and seriously consider the advantages of this trading approach. You'll be thankful for the extra years of compounding!

 ★★★★★ Trend Following Manifesto
by Sports psych from United States on Jul 16, 2012

This is an excellent podcast to provide a framework for approaching tradable markets. Michael draws from seemingly disparate sources to inform his approach, and he shows through his excellent interviews that successful trend followers share many common traits within reach of everyone. Michael generously devotes his time, expertise, and extraordinary connections in the trend following world to give away for free what can shave years off the trading learning curve and add zeroes to a capital account. Thank you Mr. Covel!

 ★★★★★ Great Job

Mr Covel is freely sharing knowledge and getting other experts to share theirs.

 ★★★★★ real "how to invest" strategies
by JAllred from United States on Jul 13, 2012

Ditch the talking heads on CNBC, and simply follow the price for better performance. Covel explains how to do it in several ways.

The recent interviews with successful traders adds tremendous value to the podcast. Start with Tom Basso.

 ★★★★★ Excellent interviews
by Trendfinder from United States on Jul 10, 2012

Excellent interviews with some of the best traders and money managers around. Lots (tons) of great information about the realities of investing. I've listened to every podcast and I know of no better place to get REAL information about very sound ways of investing your money. Listen to these podcasts if you don't want the poor returns and 75% drawdowns you have to endure with buy & hold investing, want better than 2% returns from treasuries (which is no return after inflation), and don't want to have your account blow up from selling options...otherwise don't listen.

 ★★★★★ Thinking outside the box
by jnwall02 from United States on Jul 6, 2012

Great podcast. Michael provides interviews with some of the best investors of our lifetime. Ever wondered why you haven't heard of some of these people? Michael will let you know about the bias of Wall Street & the main stream media. Wonder who made all the money during the stock market crash of 2008? Listen and you will find insight to the answer!

 ★★★★★ Great interviews
by rcmcwilly from United States on Jul 6, 2012

I love the trader interviews. There is so much lousy advice out there about trading. This is actually knowledge that helps. Successful traders talking about their experience as opposed to people who sell trading advice because they can't make money trading themselves. Good stuff!

 ★★★★★ Who took my money?
by BennyTheJet – BTJ from New Zealand on Jul 6, 2012

This is the question that Covel asked when barings bank went bust back in the 90s, the answer was a trend following trader named J W Henry. How did he do it? He had a plan, he was waiting, and he systematically exploited a market inefficiency and Covel was the guy who figured it out. Covel has unravelled the mystery of trend following in his books and now in this podcasts. Every good player needs a great coach. Michael Covel's trend following podcasts are in a way coaching for aspiring trend followers. However, whether you are a new trader (or a bruised trader) looking for a way to systematically make money out of the market, or an experienced trader, these pod casts are incredibly valuable. Irrespective of the insight from Covel's own experiences, the interviews with other top traders are a fantastic bonus. Hearing successful traders tell their story has taken the concept of Jack Schwager's Market Wizards to another level. If you are serious about trading, if you would rather be the house, than be the gambler, if don't like taking things at face value and you want to know what is really going on in financial markets, then this pod cast is for you.

AAA+ Highly recommended!!!

★★★★★ Covel review

by Omar Sprandel from United States on Jul 6, 2012

I have listened to every podcast that Mr. Covel has done. Every time I get finished listening to one, I say the same thing, that was my favorite interview. Then the next one comes out and I say the same thing again. I have been in the trading world for 7 years now and have seen and listened to many "gurus" who are in love with their own voices and have nothing unique to say. That was until I found Michael's podcasts. For me, they truly are a daily inspiration. I have read his book Trend Following and these podcasts are an excellent supplement to that. Now, I love being stuck in traffic because I have the best excuse in the world to sit back, plug in my iPhone and really learn something from Mike's insights and all the great nuggets of info that his guests openly share. I have learned more from Mike's books and podcasts, than the thousands of dollars that I have spent in trading "education" (literally tens of thousands, with nothing to show for it). I had become so disgusted with all the garbage I was allowing myself to learn and I was not benefiting from any of it. I did not know what I did not know. I didn't know what I should be focused on. It's not about how much junk you can throw up on a chart, that is all BS. I didn't know how to properly approach the market until I found Mike. So for that Mr. Covel, thank you.....

★★★★★ Excellent!

Even to someone who has specialized in TA I continue to find his podcasts engaging and informative! The information and knowledge you are able to obtain from his interviews is information you would not be able to gather anywhere else. Keep up the good work!

★★★★★ A must if you want to understand what really goes on with the markets...

by LuigiLondon from United Kingdom on Jul 6, 2012

I'm a big fan of Michael Covel. Very few authors talk about trading the way he does it – with a real and self-developed knowledge of strategies that work for people like you and me who, like Michael, are not massive institutional investors (Wall St Royalty as he calls them).

If you are tired of following investing advice in the papers, Bloomberg and magazines that has not only failed to help you build wealth but perhaps has lost you some money, if you started to feel that fundamental analysis and following the latest hot tips are not the way to go and there is something else – beyond our understanding – going on with the markets, then you need to start listening and reading Covel's work....

★★★★★ Amazing podcast!

★★★★★ Great content

by KMVup from United States on Jul 4, 2012

I have read several of your books and have been listening to your podcast for the past year. First, I would like to thank you for putting out this great content.

I listened most recently to your podcast where you played the clip from the blues brothers, where he "sees the light.". I scratched my head over the past ten years as to how my stock portfolio could be flat after a decade and knew there had to be a better way. A few years back is when I stumbled upon your book and knew that this was the way to go.

I am still learning. I have my ups and downs in the marketplace, but I am seeing more positive results. At least now I cut my losses as opposed to waiting until perpetuity for the account to recover.

Please keep up the good work and thanks again for being a beacon for others to follow.

One of the best podcasts on trend trading out there. Covel not only interviews some of the best traders he gives you great personal insight to the psychology of trading. His podcasts keep reminding us it's about a process where mechanical stops protect against losses and preserve profits.

 ★★★★★ Following Covel Teaches You to Follow Trend
by Clintstir from United States on Jun 8, 2012

I've been following Michael Covel for about 8 years. I'm embarrassed to admit it took me 6 years to adopt the mindset. I was so conditioned to look for the story, that I'd read Covel and say "yeah yeah" and then go back to reading my fundamental garbage. Through listening to Covel, reading his blog, and finally taking his course, today I finally "get it"!!! This is your chance, I find these interviews very enlightening even after all I've learned up to now. I look forward to every new interview he posts. Seize the day, these podcasts will change how you trade in practice, I'd be shocked if you don't change something by listening. Download them all, the price can't be beat! You will be a different trader after listen.

I first learned of trend following in university and spent months reading / learning about trading psychology and systems. I learned to program and now have a fully systematic trading system that I have confidence in. Michael's contributions to this industry cannot be ignored - thank you. One suggestion - I find the theme song that is used at the beginning / middle of your podcast a bit cheesy - maybe to can find something a bit more professional? (minor complaint - doesnt stop me from listening)

Thanks again!

 ★★★★★ Trend Following Gym
by silverado1 from Canada on Mar 3, 2012

Michael Covel's dogged pursuit/promotion of a system based methodology has produced a worthwhile podcast. I listen and relisten. I call this the "Trend Following Gym". A gym that maintains the correct mindset and helps identify and avoid the trading pitfalls associated with the human condition. Detach from the fundamental stories. Detach from your own emotions. Trade price with discipline. Be contrarian. Economize your information stream. Don't waver. Live in the now. Do not predict.

I've been trading/investing for 15 years with success, definitely influenced by his book Trend Following.

For those that depend on fundamentals, expand your mind to the proven ways of Trend Following and question your biases.

 ★★★★★ Great insights
by richytee from South Africa on Mar 2, 2012

Covel's book "Trend Following" really made a shift in my trading. It's the reason I am consistently riding trends and making consistent profits now. I listen to few talking heads and 'experts' and let the charts do the talking. I listen to these podcasts (among others) while I run and find that there is always a nugget or two to be taken out of them. The Pardo and Faulkner interviews are extremely good, particularly the latter which I will be listening to again. Obviously Covel is trying to sell his courses, books, movie and systems but this is just one insert at the end. I personally think some of his work is overpriced but hey, the guy has put in a lifetime of work to pull these things together. The work is not just him sitting on Google, but includes visits to attics of public libraries etc. Add this podcast to your collection of downloads and make your own mind up.

I have been reading Mike's work on Trend Following since 2003 and have found value in everything he has written. I have coded trading systems based on his "Complete Turtle Trader" book and proved to myself that it works great.

Over time, I have found Mike is worth reading, and his podcasts are an audio extension. While the podcasts are new and evolving, I will give Mike plenty of time to get the recipe right on his shows, and make them entertaining and informative. For me, he has earned that right based on his past work.

If you are new to Mike's work, his podcasts may not make alot of sense to you yet. If so, don't give up, pick up his "Trend Following: Learn How to Make Millions in Up or Down Markets" to understand what he's talking about. Its full of proof points that trend following worked in the past, did exceptionally well in 2008, and should continue to work well in the future. Once you are convinced enough that he's not BS'ing you, check out "The Complete Turtle Trader" and code up your own system and prove it to yourself that it really does work in good markets and bad. At least it will keep you in the game during the rough spots so you still have money left when the rebounds occur.

★★★★★ Extremely Helpful Info

by DavidR194 from United States on Feb 23, 2007

The podcasts are short but I see that as a positive since I don't have time to listen to someone beat around the bush. I like Mr. Covel's "get-to-the-point" style. As for criticisms, there are only two...First, a couple of the podcasts are merely defensive replies to criticisms of the Trend Following book...and although important to the author, are of little use to others. The tone of those couple of podcasts is like a criticism of the book has offended his religion or something. Second, the blurb at the end..."For more information..." is EXTREMELY annoying to anyone listening to the podcasts in sequence. Overall, though, the information contained in the podcasts is pure gold...stuff you can't find elsewhere. They are well worth listening to.

★★★★★ can you say "short"?

by Panther-15 from United States on Dec 15, 2006

I'm sorry, but minute and half anecdotes aren't a podcast. It sounds like they took the audio from one of his speaking engagements and chopped into a thousand little pieces.
